I State that as it is obviously inexpedient to include in the list the names of mere petty dealers, Govt consider that only firms having a stock in trade of not less than Rs5000- in value should ordinarily be included in it.

In the case of firms of known respectability & standing where the nature of the business is such that it does not require to hold a large amount of stock, such a minimum may not be necessary. But in the case of firms whose standing & solvency are not established some definite instruction seem to be necessary.
